pressly conferred the means of carrying it out are implied. The power of making war is conferred on Congress. The right to adopt any means of carrying that power into execution is implied, provided there is no express prohibition to the contrary. And what does Mr. Verplanck think of article 1, section 8, clause 18, in which it is expressly declared "Congress shall have power to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers," among which powers are to declare war, to raise and support armies, and to borrow money on the credit of the United States. If to make Treasury notes a legal tender be in the opinion of Congress "necessary" to carry on the war, it unquestionably has the power, anything to the contrary notwithstanding contained in the musty letter from the tombs.

DEMORALIZATION IN THE REBEL ARMY .- The mear expiration of the term of enlistment of upwards of eighty thousand of the troops in he service of the rebel junta in Virginia is evidently inspiring that august body with the most serious uneasiness. The tone of their organs shows that they have but very little expectation of being able to retain any considerable portion of them. The fact that out of an entire South Carolina regiment, whose time was up the other day, not more than one hundred men could be got to re-enlist, is tolerably conclusive proof that their fears are well founded. If the South Carolinians, who were the first to raise the standard of rebellion, thus early desert it, what hopes are there that the men from the other States can be induced to remain in hopeless inactivity at Manassas, the more particularly since they find the safety of their homes threatened at every point by the federal expeditions? This enlistment question is the greatest danger that has as yet menaced the rebel government. If it allows so large a portion of its force to disband, it will be impossible for it to replace it with any but the rawest material in time for the threatened advance of McClellan. If it passes an enactment to force the malcontents to remain, it will lead to a mutiny of the most extensive and dangerous character. It is evidently on the horns of a dilemma, from which it sees no means of escape. The anxious forebodings of its organs prove the wisdom of General McClellan's policy of patience. When he advances he will find the strength of his adversary broken by other and more bloodless agencies than the movements urged by those profound military strategists. Generals Gurley and Greeley.

NECESSITY OF UNIFORM TAXATION .- Now that the government has developed its plans for raising the sinews of war, and that one of these is a comprehensive system of taxation, it will be necessary for Congress to be very careful as manuer in which it imposes taxes, so that they shall not fall unequally upon classes. nor upon individuals of the same class. The politicians and others from each class subject to taxation will henceforth be crowding to Washington, or writing letters to members of Con. gress, to secure exemption from taxation or to ender it as light as possible. If members of Congress were to listen to all the representations that will be made to them on this subject there would be very little money raised for the war. Some newspaper proprietors, for instance, are crying out against taxation upon that species of property, and object to one-quarter or one-half a cent a copy, while others want to have papers of small circulation entirely exempt from taxation, and those of large circulation to pay for the whole press. This is manifestly unjust and contrary to the spirit of the constitution, which requires taxation to be "uniform." Let the tax be laid equally upon all newspapers, and let all other descriptions of property be taxed, without favoritism or injusfice to any. Thus alone will the tax bill be made productive, while, at the same ( ...e, none will have a right to complain.

space has been allotted to the Confederate States in the exhibition of all nations to take place shortly in London. We therefore suggest that the best use to which it could be put would be the exhibition of Mason and Slidell. They would attract as much attention as any natural curiosities in the world, and the receipts of the exhibition would doubtless be materially influenced in consequence. They are probably in England by this time, and they ought not to negdect this opportunity of reaping fresh notoriety. A whole family of gorillas just arrived from the wilds of Africa would not create as great a sensation as these secessionist ambassadors.

DIPLOMATIC MISSIONS TO THE FEEJEE ISLANDS AND THE GORILLAS .- Senator Sumner, of Massachusetts, has proposed in Congress the recognition of the independence of Havti and Liberia. and sending to them diplomatic agents. Why did he not include the Feejee Islands, whose interesting inhabitants are great on freedomfree in everything? And why did he omit the Gorilla country, whose claims to diplomatic recognition are particularly urgent in this crisis of American history?

JOHNING JOURNALISM .- Will the New York Times please give us some information about the West Washington Market job, the Ganse woort job, the Broadway Railroad job and the other jobs in which it is interested? Either the "Little Villain" who is indicted, or the one who is not yet indicted, may answer this query.

THE RASCALLY CONTRACTORS .- In nine months. out of an expenditure of two hundred millions of dollars, it is estimated that the rascally contractors have dishonestly pocketed about fifty millions of the national funds. At this rate, if the war expenditures should reach eight hundred millions, contractors would absorb about two hundred millions in their frauds. A very pretty sum to be robbed of.

SHOWING THE CLOVEN FOOT .- In Congress through their newspaper organs and from the forum, the diabolical abolitionists continue to show the cloven foot. The rebel demon is already in the toils, and is it not about time for government to exorcise the abolition devil?

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9, 1862. FAVORABLE NEWS EXPECTED PROM THE BURNSIDE

Although no intelligence has been received to day from nerals Grant, Burnside, Lander or Comm Foote, information is expected by the War and Navy Departments to morrow of the capture of Roanoke Island, in Albemarie Sound, and Fort Donelson, on the Cumber-land river, about twenty-three miles from Fort Henry. IMPORTANCE OF THE UNION VICTORIES IN TENNESSE No one has manifested more delight at the news of our recent victories in Tennessee that Senator Andy Johnson, of Tennessee, and Emerson Etheridge, Clerk of the House Senators and representatives the strategic importance of the acquisition of Forts Henry and Donelson. The posession of these defences not only cuts off the comm cation between Bowling Green and Columbus, but opentending along the Tounessee river to Mississippi and Ala. bama—a corner in which large majorities were cast against secession, and where thousands of Union men are still loyal and ready, if provided with arms, to fight for THE POSITION OF GENERAL M'CLELLAN. The greatest indignation prevails here at the per eletence of the New York Tribune and other shricking journals day after day in publishing, in a variety of forms, the shameless falsehood that General McClolian has been reduced to the simple command of the Army of the Potomac. His position is wholly unaltered, nor has it been modified in any way whatever since the advent of Mr. Stanton to the Cabinet. The New York Times of Saturday professes to modify the statement of the Tribune by giving what it calls the facts of the case, every word and syllable of which from beginning to end a untrue. The staff of General McClellan were not, as it asserts, notified a week ago to hold themselves in readi worthy and highly respected private citizen, is not only not on General McClellan's smff, but has no connection whatever with the army, nor is his errand to New York in relation to army matters. The remainder of the Times story is equally a fabrication out of the whole cioth, and the public. There never has been a difference of any kind between the Commander-in-Chief and either the President or Secretary of War, as already stated in this correspon dence. Their views have from the beginning coincided in every particular relating to the war. This last fabrication of the shrickers is regarded as the most impudent and desperate abolition dodge that has been foist upon the community. The events of the next few weeks will abundantly demonstrate how properly the people have reposed confidence in the administration and in the far-sighted young General whose energies are now di-

like that of the Tribune, is evidently intended to deceive rected towards the suppression of the rebellion.

The sole pretext for these various assaults is to be found in the fact that the new Secretary of War possesse a vigor and grasp of intellect, and force of will and energy, which are manifested in every bureau and branch of the department, but which made no changes of command and produced no conflict of views.

PAYMENT OF INTEREST ON GOVERNMENT BONDS. The motion of Representative Stevens, made on Friday, relative to the payment of interest in coin, was to correct the House journal, and did not, it is said, affect the bill which had already passed the House and sent to the Senute. The bill as passed made no special provision for the payment of the interest, but left it to be paid in coin, tofore. To remove all doubt, the Senate will pro vide, probably, expressly for such payment. THE LEGAL TENDER CLAUSE IN THE TREASURY NOTE

The statement that the Chairman of the Senate Fin Committee is opposed to the legal tender clause in the Treasury Note bill is without foundation. Mr. Fessenden asserts that his opinion on the subject is not yet decided, and that he does not know the opinion, in reference to it, entertained by any other member of the committee. No serious difficulty in the passage of the bill through the Senate is anticipated.
THE STRENGTH OF THE ADMINISTRATION IN THE

The vote on Senator Wilkinson's motion in the Senate. to strike out from the House bill the appropria eleven thousand dollars for extra expenditures in the im-provement of the White House, is regarded as a test vote of the strength of the administration and opposition par-ties in the Senate. THE SENATE'S ACTION ON THE MILITARY APPOINT

About two-thirds of the military appointments sent in to the Senate have been reported upon by the Military Committee. About one-half of those reported have been confirmed. One-third of all the appointments remain to be acted upon by the Committee. These comprise all the contested cases.
THE ETIQUETTE QUESTION AT THE FRENCH COURT.

The French court presentation question, recently agita-ted in fashionable circles and in the newspapers, is viewed in Washington as a matter unworthy of seriou consideration, and certainly possessing no political signi-ficance. The request that the quality of the Americans stated was in accordance with the usage of the imperial household, and is not as a consequence a new feature in court etiquette.

INDUSTRY OF THE PRESIDENT.

President Lincoln devotes a portion of each day to matters in the War and Navy departments—sending off despatches and facilitating by all means in his power the perfecting of preparations of our war forces for action at all points at any moment. CHEVALIER WIKOFF AND THE HOUSE JUDICIARY

Chevaller Wikoff has been subpoenzed to appear befor the flouse Judiciary Committee to-morrow morning, to undergo investigation, it is said, on certain delicate topics more or less connected with the privileges of the House. Further details of this piquant shair will be given hereafter.
THE ARMS OF THE BERDAN SHARPSHOOTERS.

The question of arming the Berdan Sharpshooters ha rides. The regiment was first taken into the service with the understanding that they were to provid their own arms, but it was soon found that the rifles they had brought with them were entirely unfit for the service in the field, and that to render the corps serviceable other arms and of uniform calibre should be supplied to them. Colone Berdan wrote officially to the Ordnance Department in July last on the subject, stating that he had tried the Springfield rifle musket, and much preferred it to any. thing he had seep, and would like some of them for his regiment. These rifle muskets, and also the Harper's Ferry rifles, with sword bayonet, of the regular models and best quality, were placed at Washington Arsenal for the use of the Sharpshooters whenever Colonel Berdar might make requisitions for both or either of them, and might make requisitions for some or either of them, and the Sharpshooters might have been armed with these wea-pons months ago if Col. Berdan had chosen to take them. He had taken a fancy, however, to another arm of much greater cost, which the Ordnance Department had not on hand, and had not authority to purchase without the order of the Socretary of War. That department did not deem it advisable to recommend such a purchase to the Secretary, involving, as it did, a cost of some ninety the secretary, involving as it did, cooled some finety thousand dollars, for arming this single corps, when it had on hand the superior and effective arms named above and ready for them, and consequently would not give such a recommendation. The order to purchase the Sharp's and Cold's rifles was subsequently issued from the War Department, just before the recent change in its administration, and was suspended before execution quently, namely, on the 28th ult., the order was repeated, and the arms—Colt's and Sharp's patent rifles—were mmediately purchased, in compliance with those orders from the War Department.

LAND OPERATIONS OF THE POTOMAC FLOTILLA. The HERALD's Petomac River correspondent sends the

Tollowing report:

OUT INDIAN HEAD, POTOMAC RIVER, Feb. 3, 1862.

I have just returned from an expedition in VirginiaIt was planned yesterday, and it was generally supposed that a landing was to be effected at Mr. Otterback's farm, but it turned out otherwise. By invitation I attached myself to the Wyandank's division, and turned in with all my clothes on. At hair-past two this morning I was awakened and told that the Reliance, which was to tow the bests to the place of landing, was along side. Starting up immediately, and catching up revolver and cutlass, it ork of a moment to get on board the Reliance, which immediately left and proceeded a little further up the river, where the Yankes was lying. We all, officers and men, went on board and took a short nap. At about half-past four we got into the boats and started for the Virginia shore in the following order:-Lioutenant Commanding Eastman, of the Yankee, in command of the expedition, in his gig with six men, armed with Colt's revolving rifles; the Yankee's cutter, with twelve men, commanded by Master's Mate Lawrence; the Anacostia cutter, with fifteen men, commanded by Master's Mate John Williams; and the Wyandank cutter, with eighteen men, commanded by Master's Mate Sheridan. We landed a little below Hol land Point, leaving the boats in charge of Master's Mate Walters, of the Reliance, and a couple of men belonging

After clambering upon a high and almost perpendicular bank, we formed in line of march, and soon reached a log house belonging to a man named Howard, who was sent on board the Yankes to prevent him from notifying the rebels of our arrival, with an assurance to his wife that he would be sent on shore as soon as we had finished the business on hand. Leaving this house we proceeded through innumerable quagmires, piloted by a contraband, to another house about a mile off, where we found a weman, but no rebel soldiers. It now began to snow pretty hard, and through the storm, after sticking in the mud soveral times, we arrived at the farm of Mr. Thomas Chapman, who is in the rebel army, and whose father has a comfortable farm a little above Indian Head, Maryland. This was the real object of the expedition. We surrounded the house, as we had done the others, and made an examination of the interior; but no obnoxious person or thing was found in it, except a pamphtet with a Richmond imprint "akirmish drill for mounted troops, by authority of John B. Floyd," the rebel Secretary of War.

It was now daybreak, when Captain Eastman detailed the Anacostia's men and some of the men belonging to the Wyandank to keep watch by the farmhouse while the Captain with the main body marched across time, Mr. Sheridan and his party saw three men in gray the road. At first, not distinguishing the uniforms, h did not know but they might have been some of our men. To make sure he fired his revolver in the air. The men then crossed the road, and taking shelter behind a bush. close to Mr. Sheridan as to splash the mud into his face poured into the enemy, evidently part of the rebel picket.

Mr. Williams and his command hearing the firing oined the other party, and they were about to give chase when a musket shot, the signal of recall, was head from the main body, which the Wyandank's and the Anacostia's soon oined. Captain Eastman then ordered the Anacostia's to He then led the Vankae's followed by the Wyandank's along a footpath through the roads, piloted by the contraband, to the beach. We travelled along the beach for some distance up the river, meeting several obstacles in our way. At one place we had to cross a narrow creek, the water of which reached through, and by the aid of those on the other side im-provised a bridge formed by a single log. All passed over, and a little further up we found Mr. Williams and his command, the robel picket having disappeared. The Yankee and the Reliance now appeared, and we soon embarked, covered, if not with glory, with a thick coating of mud. The distance we travelled was about twelve niles. We did not get on board our vessels till half-past nine this morning. The contraband who piloted us, recognized one of the rebel pickets as Tom Chapman himself.

W. E. Dennison, of West Pownall, Me., and Henry B. Carter, of Philadelphia, have been appointed Acting Mas-ters in the navy. The former is ordered to Boston and the latter to Philadelphia.

Lieutenant Wm. P. McCann is ordered to the gunbo Maritanza at Boston.

The United States gunboat Pinola, just finished at Baltimore, has arrived here. She came past the rebel batterries, accompanied by the Resolute, without being fixed at. She will here take on board her armament and stores. She is in charge of Lieutenant Commandin Crosby. The Pinols is a screw steamer, about 156 feet in length and 57 feet beam, drawing light about ten feet three inches. The engines (two) are beautifully finished. are about 500 horse power, and were built by C. Reeder, of Baltimore.

SICKNESS IN THE PRESIDENT'S FAMILY. It was announced yesterday that the usual Saturday reception at the White House and the leves on Tuesday would be omitted, on account of the illness of the second son of the President, an interesting lad of about eight years of age, who has been lying dangerously ill of billous fever for the last three days: night, and fears are entertained for her health. Thi evening the fever has abated, and hopes are entertained of the recovery of the little sufferer.

HOSPITAL SUPPLIES. During the week ending February 8, fifty-one packages of articles for hospital use were received at the hospital depot of the Sanitary Commission in Washington and the Army of the Potomac.

Two hundred and ninety-seven sick soldiers were taken care of at the lodges of the Commission, in Washington. Three medical inspectors of the Commission arrived, dusick of General Lander's column, and hospital supplies for one thousand privates were forwarded to them by way of Wheeling. Reports have been received from an inspector of the Commission, who was promptly on the ground with ample supplies for the wounded at the battle of Somerset. Inspectors have departed for Port Royal and Ship Island, with supplies in charge. Ample assorted supplies for the Burnside expedition are ready at a sea port for transportation.

BOLD ATTEMPT AT ROBBERY—CAPTURE OF ONE OF

A bold attempt was made on Saturday night to rob Martin Hennessey, who lives at 107 East Twenty-fifth street, and is employed as fireman on board the steamthip City of New York. Hennessey had occasion to ente ship Gity of New York. Hennessey had eccasion to enter the premises No. 15 Eaxter street, and on leaving was accosted by a man named Feter Casey, who invited him to go to No. 53 Baxter street, where another man joined them and the three played a few games of cards. Hennessey then started to leave, but on reaching the dior Casey seized him by the cravat and pulled him to the floor. The two confederates then rifled Hennessey's pockets of $3.50 and a handkerchief. An alarm being raised, Officer Davis of the Sixth ward came up and arrested Casey. The other man managed to escape. On being taken before Justice Brennan, the prisoner was committed to the Tombs for trial, in default of $1,000 ball. Hennessey was held in $300 too appear and testify.

Two young men, named Walker McKay and John Sullivan, were arrested on Saturday night for attempting to pass a counterfeit five dollar bill on the Bank of Newark, N. J. The bill was tendered in payment for sundry drinks they had indulged in at the porter house, No. 21 Frankfort street. Lona Volher, the barmaid, detected the character of the note, and called noticer Thayer, of the Fourth ward, who took both parties into custody. It afterwards appeared that the same men had offered one of the spurious bills to Charles Mandervirth, of No. 27 Franklin street, who told them it was a counterfeit. Previous to the arrest a large roil of bills was seen in Sullivan's possession, but whon he was taken the money could not be found. Justice Brennan committed the prisoners to the Tombs for trial.

Another Case of the Same Nature.—Officer Beams, of PASSING COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

ANOTHER CASE OF THE SAME NATURE .- Officer Beams, of the Twenty-seventh precinct, arrested a man named John Parsons for attempting to pass one of the counter-feit Bank of Newark five dollar bills. It had been of-fered to Peter McDonobos, of No. 13 Morris street. Par-sons had previously been informed that the bill was bad one. Justice Brennan committed the accused for further examination.

CAPTURE OF A PICKFOCKET.—William E. Jones was taken into custody on Saturday night by officer Bellt, for relieving the pocket of Francis Kelly of a purse containing twenty-three dollars and twenty-five cents. The delicate operation was performed in the drinking place No. 478, Pearl street. The robbery was immediately discovered, and Jones confessed his guilt and gave up the stolen money to Edward Henry, the barkeeper. Justice Brennan committed him for trial.

ALLEGED ROBERTY OF TREASURY NOTES.—Thomas Autoine, of No. 1 Mechanics alley, was arrested yesterday toine, of No. I Mechanics allay, was arrested yesterday by officer Riblan, of the Seventh precinct, on a charge of stealing from Samuel Graves, who lives in the same house, the sum of fifty dollars in Treasury notes, and a one dollar bill. Graves had the money in the pecket of his pantaleons, which were under his head. He felt the accused draw them from under his pillow in the night time. When Antoine was arrested the missing rotes, as described, were found on his parson. Justice Oaborne, of the isaax Market Police Court, committed him for trial in default of 2500 ball. The accused is a native of Cape de Verde Island, and is twenty seven years of and.

Rensselaer pond last night. There was an immense crowd. Members of the Assembly and Senate, Governor Morgan and other officials were present. There was band of music on the pond, which favored the crow of Mr. Haines, of New York, danced two or three polks on skates. The whole affair was one of the finest enter tainments that we have had here this winter.

State efficials, mayors, pertamanagers, brigadier generals, sons of State officers an numerous others personages turn up in the shoddy poo in a no enviable manner. The Van Wyck report reveals n this State; but that committee only removed the out side cover, leaving the kernel of the whole affair to this committee. They are closing their work well thus far and have gone to the botton of many of these transactions. They have not completed their work yet; there are many witnesses to examine to complete the testi mony. give the public, through their report, the full particulars how every one of the sheddyites of this State conspired with any portion of the Military Board to plunder the State. The facts that the committee have obtained are, for prudential reasons, kept from the public for the present. Other witnesses are to be examined many who, as the testimouy now stands, have a bud record; and their examination is necessary to complete the chain of evidence before it is published. Sufficient for the present that a rich placer has been discovered, in which more individuals than is generally supposed are caught with their fingers in this monstrous shoddy pie.

The Senate was not in session to day. The Assembly was occupied during the early part of the session in third reading of bills and reports of committees. A large number of bills were introduced, and when the order of business on resolutions was reached a resolution was adopted, without any person paying particular attention to it, inviting Rev. Dr. Fisher, of Hamilton College, to address the Legislature some time during the present monition the state of the Union. Subsequently Mr. Stetson, of Clinton, moved to rescind the resolution, stating that be had no objection to invite him to deliver an address upon Christs "Sermon on the Mount;" but he objected to the clergy being invited here to instruct the Legislature as to their duty on the national issues. Rev. Mr. Pruyn took issue with Mr. Stetson, and dwelt largely upon the legislature as to their duty on the national issues. Rev. Mr. Pruyn took issue with Mr. Stetson and dwelt largely upon the legislature as to their duty and the subsequence of the clergy, and the importance of their having more to do with the affairs of the country than they do have at the present. He was somewhat personal in his speech, assailing the legal profession. We had a decidedly spicy debate for a few moments, in which the representatives of the two professions by business of the state of the faction and proprise approaches from Mayres without Mysterious Murder in Brooklyn. VICTIM.

The dead body of Sergeant Sanford Udall, of th Seventy-first regiment, was found in front of his residence, 52 Harrison street, Brooklyn, early on Saturday morning last, under circumstances which have led to the supposition that he was waylaid and murdered. He was at his regimental drill on Friday evening, and when he left his companions he was in perfect health. Nothing oor. The head was shockingly mutilated, the eve and nose being smashed into the brain. A coroner's inquest was yesterday held on the body, when a verdic was rendered in accordance with the facts.

About six o'clock, on the evening of the fatal night or left the house, and proceeded to New York, to respond to the summons which called his company to drill exercises in the regimental armory, Centre Market. He was as usual, perfectly sober, and informed his brother that he would return at about eleven o'clock. He seemed to la bor under no foresight of a fatal end; and the family returned his adieus as he descended the steps up which he was fated to be carried, lifeless, a few hours afterward He participated in the drill of his company, and subsequently parted with his military comrades. One of then accompanied him over the ferry to Brooklyn, and left him at the corner of Atlantic and Court streets. The deceased had six blocks to waik to his residence, and part of the route was one which none but a bold murderer, or one animated by a reckless de sire for revenge, would se-lect as the scene of crime. The assassin, however, shrewely deferred his purpose till the deceased reacher Harrison street-a quiet thoroughfare, almost totally de populated at a late hour of the night. These circumstances favored the murder, and involved the occurre.co in comparative mystery. After the body was discovered, all sorts of theories were started. The opinion that the decased might have died from a fall on the ice, instantly exploded, when it was discovered that his wounds must have been produced by a club, and that the sidewalk where he was found dead was clean. Coroner Norris consulted the family, and others, and the result of his interview consisted in ascertaining that Udell had formed an intimacy with a young lady, which calminated in marriage. The lady has—what all ladies pessess—a history. She had been formerly the wise of a naval officer named Lawrence, of the San Jacinto, now alive. She concluded that if he had not died is would have corresponed with her. She chose Udall subsequently for his successor, and they lived harmoniously tegether.

These circumstances, as narrated to the Coroner, led hin to issue a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Lawrence. Mr. Lawrence boarded at the house of Mrs. Coffey, corner of Boerum and Livingston streets, and is a man of middle age and pleasing appearance. It is considered probable, by his friends, that he will be able to prove an aibi, and thus effect his immediate release.

On Friday night, at ten o'clock, Lawrence, accompanied by others, was observed in the ale house of John Ludd, corner of Boerum and Livingston streets. He was secorted there by a well known judge of Brooklyn, whose brother was well acquanted with Lawrence, having sailed somewhat previeusly in the same vessel with him. Lawrence, it is stated, returned to his house about ten o'clock, and induged in smoking with Mr. Coffey for an hour, after which he retired to bed in company with Mr. Coffey's son. The latter period being the one in which the murder was not a shell when house, and the courrence created the wilded sonsation among the boarders, and hour, and the course of the fellow officers of Mr. Lawrence in Colley's. The policy of the change, but was a populated at a late hour of the night. These circumstances favored the murder, and involved the occurrence in comparative mystery. After the body was discovered,
